Enduroplank™ is an innovative decking product that represents the very latest technology in the use of recycled plastic. Not only is Enduroplank a robust, long-lasting and effectively maintenance-free product. It offers an environmentally friendly alternative to treated or hardwood timber for decking and boardwalks.

Ideal for a wide range of public space and commercial applications, Enduroplank is especially suitable for marine environments. Even when submerged, salt water and sea air will not degrade the recycled plastic material.

Colour-fast and looking good for years to come, Enduroplank will not split, rot or crack, and won't splinter the feet. It never needs painting and provides trouble free surface long after timber has completed its useful life.
